a number of articles the same night.

There is likely to be a contest before the courts to decide who are to be members of the Essex Public Road Board. The last Legislature passed a law providing that all vacancies should be filled by the Beard of Freeholders, and it is contended that this did away with the election by the people. In October the Board of Freeholders appointed two members to the Road Board to fill vacancies which would happen in January. These persons qualified last Wednesday. In November two candidates to the Board were elected by the people, and on Friday they were furnished with certificates and were sworn into office. The Road Board will meet today, when the contesting members will appear and claim their places.
